Addressing unsafe intersections, repaving, safety measures, & more

Work funded by the Roads Penny, passed by voters in 2023, is ramping up across Spartanburg County. Many Tier 1 priority projects are completed or underway now including several projects that will make dangerous intersections safer by transitioning them to roundabouts. And later this year, repaving work is set to begin on municipal roadways countywide, in places like Greer, Cowpens, Reidville, Woodruff, the city of Spartanburg, and more.

Each of the 577 projects to be funded by the Roads Penny were designed to make Spartanburg County's roadways safer.

Spartanburg Water and Liberty-Chesnee-Fingerville Water District extend partnership

Spartanburg Water and the Liberty-Chesnee-Fingerville Water District (LCF) have enjoyed a long and mutually beneficial relationship for many years, during which time Spartanburg Water has provided treated drinking water, through a wholesale agreement, to customers in the LCF service area. The LCF Water District is located in the northeastern part of Spartanburg County.

During this time, both organizations have had a strong partnership that has provided consistent and quality service to benefit the customers within the respective service areas.

The leadership of Spartanburg Water and LCF Water District have again agreed to maintain this relationship, with the signing of an extended, long-term agreement that extends this partnership well into the next decade. Through this agreement, Spartanburg Water will continue to serve LCF, who in turn, will continue to provide exceptional and reliable drinking water services to their customers.

SMC breaks enrollment record again

Spartanburg Methodist College once again recorded its highest enrollment ever with 1,220 students for the fall 2025

The fall enrollment broke the record set just last year and exceeded 1,200 students for first time in college history. Total enrollment increased by 8.1 percent over 2024.

SMC continues to grow its academic program, adding another new bachelor's degree this fall with a BA in Humanities. The college will add its first Bachelor of Science degree in Exercise Science next fall.

Wildflower Way Ribbon Cutting October 4

This special event represents more than just the opening of a new trail segment. It is a celebration of progress, partnership, and community spirit.

The new Wildflower Way section adds beautiful opportunities for walking, biking, and connecting with nature. That will feature a paved, ADA-accessible path through the Edward Griffin Preserve and Spartanburg's very own Rainbow Bridge. Bring your friends, family, and pets to share in this celebration on Saturday, October 4, 10:00 a.m. - 11:00 a.m. Parking is available at the River Birch Trail, Sydnor Road, Spartanburg; and the parking lot at Edward Griffin Nature Preserve Trailhead, across from 403 Beechwood Drive, Spartanburg.

11 Spartanburg Methodist College teams earn NAIA Scholar Team Honors

Eleven of the Spartanburg Methodist College intercollegiate athletic programs were honored as NAIA Scholar Teams, part of NAIA National Awards Day.

To earn the award, a team must maintain a 3.0 or greater cumulative grade point average during the athletic season.

The SMC women's basketball team posted a programbest 3.7 GPA. Earning the honor were volleyball (3.61), beach volleyball (3.61), softball (3.43), men's soccer (3.41), women's soccer (3.27), men's golf (3.23), baseball (3.16), men's cross country (3.11), women's basketball (3.1) and women's outdoor track and field (3.08). The 3.61 GPA earned by the beach volleyball program was the top in the NAIA along with Mobile. Plus, the 3.41 GPA by the men's soccer team was the eighth in the NAIA.

Hodge, Brown to be inducted into Spartanburg District Three Hall of Fame

Spartanburg School District Three has announced the inaugural class of its newly established Hall of Fame. The first inductees are longtime trustee Larry Hodge and renowned musician and educator Dr. Uzee Brown Jr.

Larry Hodge, a 1959 graduate of Pacolet High School, dedicated more than three decades of service to the District Three Board of Trustees—becoming the first individual to serve over 30 years in that role.

Throughout his tenure, Hodge was a strong advocate for students and families, working closely with local governments and community leaders to expand educational opportunities across the district. He played a key role in overseeing significant transitions, including consolidation Cowpens High School and Pacolet High School into Broome High School. Hodge passed away in November 2018.

Dr. Uzee Brown Jr., a Cowpens native and 1968 graduate of Benjamin E. Mays Consolidated School, has earned international acclaim as a composer, opera singer and educator. He recently retired as a professor of music at Morehouse College in Atlanta, where he spent much of his career nurturing young artists.

Brown's compositions have been performed on four continents and in venues ranging from concert halls to cathedrals. He has composed for National Public Radio, the Atlanta Symphony Orchestra, and film director Spike Lee—contributing music to School Daze and Red Hook Summer.

His orchestral and choral arrangement of We Shall Overcome was featured during the celebration of Dr. Martin Luther King Jr.'s 70th birthday. Brown also performed at the inauguration of President Jimmy Carter and later at Carter's funeral. He is the founder and director of the Uzee Brown Society of Choraliers and co-founder of Onyx Opera Atlanta.

Both inductees will be honored during a special halftime ceremony at the Broome High School football game on October 24 at Royal Stadium.

USC seeks partner for $30 million brain health center

By: Jessica Holdman for S.C. Daily Gazette

www.scdailygazette.com

Columbia — The University of South Carolina is seeking a partner to help run its new $30 million brain health clinic scheduled to open in March in downtown Columbia.

The center will house the most powerful MRI scanner in the state and be staffed by neurologists and radiologists with the necessary training to diagnose the most complicated cases of Alzheimer's disease and other types of dementia, said Julius Fridriksson, USC's vice president for research.

The state's largest university system is looking for a management company to staff and run the clinic on a day-to-day basis.

The center is located in a renovated 75,000-squarefoot building the school owns on the Prisma Health Richland Hospital campus. It will be the main hub in a network of seven clinics already set up across the state in an effort to increase access to brainrelated disease research and cutting-edge treatments, even in rural areas.

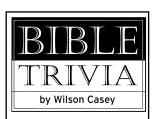

Since opening its first clinic in partnership with Prisma Health more than a year ago in Winnsboro, the USC Brain Health Network has seen more than 1,000 patients, and the number of visits keeps increasing, Fridriksson

While awaiting the new center's completion, USC medical school doctors been booking appointments more than four days a week in university-leased space within the neurology department Prisma's Richland Hospital.

"So the Brain Health Center can't come online fast enough," Fridriksson

Also at the center, those diagnosed Alzheimer's will have the option to undergo treatwith recently approved drugs meant to slow the disease's progresdisease could greatly benefit from the state-of-the-art drugs, which received U.S. Food and Drug Administration approval just last

"The drugs are good," Fridriksson said. "I mean, if it was me or a family member that was starting to show signs of cognitive decline and the workup revealed that it is most likely Alzheimer's disease, I'd do it in a heartbeat."

The center will have six infusion rooms where patients can get their monthly treatment. The Medical University of South Carolina health system and Prisma offer these injectable drug treatments but on a smaller scale, Fridriksson said.

"I think it's the first time in my time as a researcher that we've had any significant improvement in managing Alzheimer's disease," he added. "And I hope that as many people can get those drugs as possible."

But the drug does not come without risks, including a chance of

Part of administering it is having a powerful enough MRI (Magnetic Resonance Imaging) scanner and a team of specially trained physicians to be sure the patient has Alzheimer's rather than a different form of dementia that wouldn't benefit from the treatment.

At the center, that will include a 7-tesla MRI scanner with a magnet strong enough to generate images of the brain with minute detail, as well as a 3-tesla scanner.

Tesla is a scientific term for the strength of a magnet. By comparison, most hospital MRI machines are just 1.5-tesla.

USC has collected bids from companies interested in joining in the center's operations and receiving a share of the revenues. According to the public procurement schedule, the winning bid will be posted online Dec. 16.

If a suitable partner isn't found, the school will consider running the center itself, Fridriksson said.

After all, it's a sector of health care that does not generate a profit. "The Brain Health Network wouldn't be needed if there was a lot of money to be made," Fridriksson said. "There's a reason why the big players are not rushing into this space."

The network — with locations Sumter. Seneca, Orangeburg, Lexington and Darlington, in addition to Winnsboro and Columbia — is run using $5 million in taxpayer dollars annually. So, while a potential partner isn't likely to earn much, it won't risk losing money.

The real benefit, according to Fridriksson, is the prestige of partnering with a major state research university. He said the relationship and the potential for participating in college-run research and clinical trials could be a recruiting tool for health care providers trying to hire the best doctors.

"So, for a hospital, if you want to attract physicians and nurses who want to be involved in cutting-edge stuff, partner with us," Fridriksson said. "Even though these new drugs are coming online, there's a lot more work to be done."

The brain health clinic is located a half mile from the site of USC's new $300 million School Medicine campus, set for completion in 2027, and a $350 million neurological hospital and rehabilitation center planned for downtown Columbia's Bull Street District.

The Legislature provided $150 million this year toward the specialized hospital for neurological diseases. Prior state budgets collectively provided almost $200 million toward building the new medical school.

The broader plans are another selling point for doctors and researchers considering a career in South Carolina.

Fridriksson imagines technological advances within the next decade that could help quadriplegics control their limbs and walk using brain implants and exoskeleton. Those suffering from locked-in syndrome, a rare neurological disorder that causes paralysis of all muscles except for those that control eye movements, could be able to speak through a computerized voice machine controlled by implants.

"We know that treatment is advancing with artificial intelligence and neuroscience," Fridriksson said. "Rehab is going to be very different five years from now. And having the hospital be in the thick of that, the timing could not be better."

Sweet ideas for afternoon snacks

(StatePoint) Snack time is not just about refueling yourself, it's also an opportunity to hit the pause button and unwind, whether that means rewarding yourself for a job well done, connecting with coworkers in the breakroom, or building memories with friends and family.

According to Wonder bread, the iconic brand with over 100 years of expertise in feeding American families, snack time can be a satisfying indulgence without being complicated. That's why the brand has recently introduced a new lineup of nostalgic sweet treats that are making your all-time favorites even yummier. To celebrate the launch, Wonder is offering these simple ideas for afternoon snacks that will give you and yours that much needed pick-me-up:

1. Enjoy the rich flavor of Glazed Honey Buns or Pecan Cinnamon Twists with a steaming cup of Earl Grey tea.

If you're feeling extra indulgent, enjoy these treats à la mode!

2. Turn the afternoon into a party with Creme Filled Confetti Cakes. Whatever the occasion - a birthday, the completion of a big project or just because – you can pair these airy treats with strawberries and milk. Feeling more chocolatey? Try serving the Creme Filled Chocolate Cupcakes along with bananas or raspber-

3. Nothing goes better with an afternoon cup of joe or cappuccino than some classic and delicious Frosted or Powdered Mini Donuts.

4. Spice up the afternoon with the warmth and sweetness of Brown Sugar Cinnamon Donut Sticks and a chai latte served piping hot or iced.
