Penny-funded resurfacing work kicks off on Highway 290

With resurfacing kicking off on Highway 290 – one of Spartanburg County's most-traveled roads – work is moving in some form or fashion on all 577 projects that will be funded by the Capital Penny Sales Tax approved by voters in November. "While the public may not see it physically right now, it's in design, it's in right of way acquisition, we are working and seeing movement on every single penny project," according to Scottie Kay Blackwell, Communications Manager for Spartanburg County.

The resurfacing work on Highway 290 is scheduled to be completed in a couple of months.

Converse students VIP guests at 75th NATO Summit

Two Converse students were VIP guests at the 75th Anniversary of the founding of NATO, held in June in Washington, DC. Although Summit conferences meet in a different NATO country annually, this celebration was a grand event with an expanded agenda and worldwide coverage. With the war in Ukraine and America's commitment to NATO an issue in the Presidential campaign, this was an especially important meeting.

Jerome Harris '25, a senior from Alexandra, VA. and Maddy Skoog '25 (Nisbet Honors), a senior from Traveler's Rest, were selected guests invited to attend the debates and sessions of the NATO conference. It was a distinct honor for the two undergrads to be chosen for this opportunity. Most of the attendees were professionals already in the field or graduate students in foreign affairs and national security from the top universities in the U.S. and abroad.

Jerome and Maddy were representatives of the International Model NATO program. Their credentials included being award-winning debaters, and both have served as committee chairs at the Model. Jerome is a cohead delegate of this year's Converse Model Programs team, the first male to serve in this role. Maddy was an intern with the National Council on U.S-Arab Relations during the summer.

Converse is the recognized power in International Model NATO having won the Outstanding Delegation in all 20 years of participation in the competition. Converse also serves as the permanent Secretariat of the Model that runs the model annually in February in DC, and Dr. Joe Dunn is the managing director of the event. Senior Pashion Israel will serve as this year's Secretary General.

Converse begins preparation for the Model each year in September with the competitive selection of new members for the delegation. The team practices every Sunday evening through the competition. Prior to the Model, the delegations visit the embassies of the countries that they represent that year.

Spartanburg Community College announced as Cornerstone Partner of Hub City Spartanburgers

Adapted from information courtesy of OneSpartanburg, Inc.

Spartanburg Community College (SCC) recently announced its landmark partnership with the Hub City Spartanburgers, becoming an official Cornerstone Partner of the team. This historic collaboration marks the first of its kind in South Carolina, solidifying SCC's commitment to innovative partnerships that uplift the community and its students.

"The Chasers of Spartanburg Community College are proud to team up with the Spartanburgers for this historic partnership! The countdown is on for the start of the 2025 baseball season, and we are ready to play ball!" said Dr. Michael Mikota, President of Spartanburg Community College.

The Spartanburgers, a High-A affiliate of the Texas Rangers, is a newly announced communityfocused minor league baseball team that has quickly become a beloved fixture in the area, known for its family-friendly environment and community engagement. By partnering with the Spartanburgers, SCC aims to foster a deeper connection with the local community while providing students with unique opportunities for learning, growth, and real-world experience.

"We are extremely excited to partner with Spartanburg Community College and build a long-term relationship," said Tyson Jeffers, General Manager of the Hub City Spartanburgers. "Our brands are strongly aligned in creating value for our community, and the elements of this partnership will allow both of our organizations to execute that at the highest level."

As a Cornerstone Partner, SCC is stepping up to take an active role with the Spartanburgers both on and off the field. SCC students will have access to exclusive work-study and internship opportunities in exciting areas like horticulture (grounds), hospitality, marketing, business, culinary arts, and operations. SCC-branded spaces in the stadium will also be featured, becoming must-see spots for guests of all ages!

Chasers Berm will be located above the left field wall and have the capacity to seat hundreds in each game. Ticket prices for Chasers Berm will be the most economical in the ballpark, providing great accessibility for fans looking for an enjoyable night at the park. SCC will also be the title sponsor of the SCC Corner, a group space that is strategically placed above the left field corner, providing unique perspectives of the game and ballpark. The SCC Corner will host groups of up to 75 guests; tickets to the private space will also include a pre-game meal. SCC will also be the sponsor of the club's military and veteran programming throughout the year, including sponsorship of a promotion that honors a veteran at each home game with a Spartanburgers jersey and on-field awareness; title sponsorship of multiple military- and veterans-focused games; and military and veteran ticket packages for specific games.

Additionally, SCC will be the title sponsor of Thirsty Thursdays at Fifth Third Park. Thirsty Thursdays, presented by Spartanburg Community College, will include beer and other drink specials throughout the game.

Ultimately, this partnership opens the door to exciting opportunities for SCC-hosted events, exclusive volunteer programs, and innovative collaborations — all aimed at enhancing and transforming the educational experience for SCC students. SCC announced that this year's graduation ceremony will be the first of many events to be held at the new Fifth Third Park stadium, symbolizing the start of a new era of innovation and community engagement

"This partnership aligns with our mission to engage with the community in meaningful ways, and we're excited to be part of such an energetic and passionate organization that shares our values. Together, we are creating pathways for our students to succeed on and off the field," said Dr. Stacey Obi, Vice President of Strategic Innovation at Spartanburg Community College. "This partnership is a win for the two organizations and the entire Spartanburg community. This partnership is a testament to the incredible spirit of collaboration in the city of Spartanburg."

The Hub City Spartanburgers will take the field for the first time at Fifth Third Park on Tuesday, April 15th, 2025. Full-season ticket memberships are available now at www.hubcityspartanburg ers.com. More information regarding group and single-game tickets will be released in the coming months. Fans can expect to see enhanced engagement at the ballpark and new programs designed to bring the college and community closer together.

Strategically located across one of the most economically vibrant regions in the United States, Spartanburg Community College (SCC), home of the proud Chasers, drives the economy forward while empowering thousands of students to "Dream it, Chase it, and Live it."

Spartanburg Water awarded for more than 50 years of fluoridation

The South Carolina Department of Environmental Services (SCDES) announced that the R.B. Simms Drinking Water Treatment Facility was recently honored with a Fluoridation Water Quality Award from the U.S. Centers for Disease Control and Prevention (CDC for calendar year 2022). The award recognizes those communities that maintained a consistent level of optimally fluoridated water throughout 2022.

Spartanburg Water has been committed to fluoridation for more than 50 years. The latest studies from the CDC show that prevents fluoridation tooth decay in all age groups, not just children. Community water fluoridation has been recognized by the CDC as one of ten great public health achievements of the 20th Century. The CDC recommends water fluoridation as one of the most practical, cost-effective, equitable and safe measures a community can take to prevent tooth decay and improve oral health.

The Community Water Fluoridation Award is given jointly by the American Dental Association (ADA), the Association of State and Territorial Dental Directors (ASTDD), and the Centers for Disease Control and Prevention (CDC) to recognize public water systems that have consistently adjusted the fluoride concentration in drinking water, starting in 1968.

"We are happy to receive this achievement award from our public health partners, and we recognize the ongoing importance of providing safe, high-quality water to our community," said Ken Tuck, Director of Drinking Water Services for Spartanburg Water.

Despite the great strides made to improve the oral health of children, tooth decay is still the most common chronic childhood disease. If dental problems go untreated, they can lead to serious, long-term illnesses such as diabetes and heart disease. Through the fluoridation of our drinking water, Spartanburg Water aims to give children and adults - a better chance at good oral health.

Spartanburg Water, an industry leading utility, is comprised of Spartanburg Water System and Spartanburg Sanitary Sewer District. It serves a population of nearly 200,000 within Spartanburg County, as well as others in parts of Greenville, Union and Cherokee counties.

Michelin celebrates 50 years in Greenville

Adapted from information courtesy of Michelin and the City of Greenville

Five decades in South Carolina have been good for Michelin North America, the state and the city.

Michelin celebrated its 50th anniversary of doing business in South Carolina with a special event on September 17 at its corporate headquarters in Green-Gov. Henry McMaster and Mayor Knox White were among the state and local leaders marking the occasion, along with outgoing president and CEO of Michelin North America, Alexis Garcin, and his successor, Matthew Cabe.

"Today, we celebrate those generations who made Michelin what it has become: a proud South Carolina citizen," Garcin

For the City of Greenville, the celebration marked two anniversaries. Not only did Michelin bring operations to South Carolina 50 years ago, but it also moved its North American corporate headquarters from Lake Success, NY, to Greenville in 1985. Both events were watershed moments for the city's development.

Michelin celebrated 50 years of doing business in South Carolina with a special event on September 17.

"Michelin bringing new industry to the area was a seismic event in Greenville," said Mayor White. "At the time, industry was all about textiles. Michelin changed manufacturing in the Upstate by diversifying its industry. Then, when Michelin's corporate headquarters moved to Greenville, everything else changed as well."

In addition to its economic impact, White noted the company's commitment to the local community through support of various public education programs, as well as its role as a major corporate sponsor of projects like Unity Park.

"For the last 50 years, Michelin has been a driving force in our state, creating good jobs, modernizing our economy, and helping to build our automotive industry into the powerhouse it is today," said McMaster. "We are grateful for their contributions and look forward to continuing our great partnership for years to come."

Michelin coming to South Carolina has also touched families across generations as well.

Eugene Bishop and his brother, Jeff, followed in the footsteps of their father, Curtis, and began their careers at Michelin. Eugene started at the truck tire plant in Spartanburg (US3), and has held various jobs with the company, including his current role in Consumer Care based at the headquarters.

"My dad worked at US3," Eugene said. "He started there and retired there 35 years later. At Michelin, there are lots of opportunities if you apply yourself. On a personal level, my family has been through some challenging events while I've been with Michelin, and I've always had the company's support. I have life-long friends here."

According to an economic impact report marking the anniversary, the University of South Carolina's Darla Moore School of Business found Michelin North America has had a $266 billion cumulative total economic impact since locating in the state. The company supports more than 8,000 jobs in the Upstate and over 23,000 jobs at 34 facilities across the US and Canada.

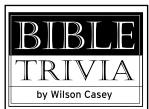

The study also found Michelin remains a top contributor to South Carolina's knowledge economy through its research, marketing, sales and manufacturing activities.

Transparency builds trust between charities and donors

Editorial submitted by South Carolina Secretary of State Mark Hammond

Charitable solicitations have evolved dramatically over the years. While charitable appeals used to come mostly through phone calls or mail, today you might be asked to make a charitable donation through a text message, social media post, or even at the grocery store checkout. Despite these changes, one thing remains constant: the need for transparency. Donors need to know who they are giving to and how their contributions are being used by these charitable organizations.

A recent study by Independent Sector revealed that nonprofit organizations contributed $1.5 trillion to the U.S. economy in 2022 - or 5.6% of the Trust is the foundation of the relationship between charities and donors. Without it, donors will hesitate to conand nonprofit organizations will struggle to fulfill their missions. As South Carolina's Secretary of State, I oversee the administration of the Solicitation of Charitable Funds Act, which was passed in 1994 to promote transparency and accountability. The Solicitation of Charitable Funds Act requires charities and professional fundraisers soliciting in our state to register and file financial reports annually. office then publishes this information online that so potential donors can easily research a charity or fundraiser before donating. To further support wise charitable giving, our office launched Give Smart SC in 2023. Give Smart SC is a free mobile app that allows donors to look up a charity whenever and wherever they receive a solicitation. Donors can also use the app to file a confidential complaint if they have any concerns about a donation or a charity's practices.

In fiscal year 2023-2024, more than 17,000 charitable organizations, 1,300 professional fundraisers, and 650 nonprofit raffles were registered to solicit in South Carolina. The Secretary of State's Office received nearly 800 complaints—a 74% increase over the prior fiscal year. In addition, the revenue collected from noncompliant charities, professional fundraisers, and raffles increased by over 50% from the prior year. Our office depends on members of the public to report their concerns and stay vigilant when making charitable donations.

Legitimate charities welcome transparency. It demonstrates responsible stewardship of donor resources and builds confidence in charitable giving. To make compliance easier, our office has streamlined the filing process for charities, fundraisers, and raffles by offering the option to file online. This past year, we also launched six online tutorials to guide customers through the online filing process. As a result, online filings have increased, with nearly 85% of charities submitting their annual registration forms online in fiscal year 2023-2024.

How homeowners and renters should respond after a natural disaster (StatePoint) Nearly onethird of U.S. homes are at a high risk of natural disaster, according to Core-Logic.

It's essential to know what to do before a natural disaster strikes and how to navigate the aftermath. Freddie Mac is offering homeowners and renters these tips:

Contact Your Insurer and Mortgage Servicer

Whether you rent or own, one of the first people you contact should be your insurance agent or mortgage servicer.

If you're a renter and your rental unit or property sustains damage, contact your renters insurance company to file a claim. Most policies cover damage from tornadoes, fires, hail and non-flood related water damage. You also should inform your property manager. Sharing pictures of damage may help them make insurance claims, if necessary. To ensure everyone is on the same page, keep a written record of any communications about plans to address damage. If you're a homeowner, call your homeowners insurance agent. In addition to assessing your property's condition and reimbursing repair and replacement costs, many policies also cover additional living expenses if you are displaced, such as temporary housing, food, pet boarding and other household expenses. It's also critical to let your mortgage company or servicer know about your current circumstances and to learn about available disaster relief options.

Get Relief

Disasters can stress your finances, but there are ways to get help.

If you're struggling to make rent following a natural disaster, talk to your property manager about flexible payments. You should also look at your lease agreement for a rental abatement clause, which may allow you to pause or make partial rent payments if your unit is damaged. As you rebuild, you may also be eligible for programs like federal tax relief and financial assistance for energy bills.

If you're a homeowner, there are relief options available to help if you're at risk of missing a mortgage payment due to a natural disaster. One such option is mortgage forbearance, which allows you to reduce or pause your payments for a specified period. Keep in mind that if you choose this option, you should be prepared for when forbearance ends and normal payments resume. You should also refer to the information about disaster assistance and resources provided by entities like FEMA, DisasterAssistance. gov, The U.S. Department of Housing and Urban Development and American Red Cross.

Be Aware of Scams

After a natural disaster, you may be a target for scam artists or predatory lenders seeking out people in distress. Help avoid becoming a victim by being aware of common schemes. These include high-interest loans for repairs, which may offer short-term relief, but end up costing you more in the long term. You should also be wary when prepaying contracts for repairs. Don't authorize any payments until all work is completed and you're satisfied with the final product. Finally, don't provide personal information to anyone claiming to be a government employee or disaster relief professional without verifying their identity. Remember that government employees will never ask you for financial information, such as a bank account number.

If you believe you've been a victim of a scam, report it immediately. First, call your creditors to cancel your credit cards. You can also request that creditors receive your written consent before changing your mailing address or sending a replacement credit card. Then, contact the credit bureaus to freeze your credit reports so that there's no activity unless you approve it. Finally, report the scam to consumer protection agencies like the Federal Trade Commission and the U.S. Department of Justice so that the culprit can't strike again.
